REACH NEW AUDIENCES

Join a Nationally-Recognized New Center for Professional Development

Dear Exhibitors and Sponsors,

The Teaching Studio is one of the nation's few professional development centers based in a successful urban school. Our work with public schools has been touted by the New York Times, Washington Post, and NBC Nightly News. Our regional conference features the rare combination of national keynotes and dozens of workshops led by classroom teachers – all planned for one rich, efficient day.

We've kept conference fees affordable with support from the RI Foundation and the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, and that includes great rates for exhibitors too. We'd love for you to join us!

Our very first conference in 2014 drew over 300 educators from 7 states. This March we'll convene a diverse group of K-8 educators and administrators and during a special lunch plenary we'll be joined by policy makers, elected officials and thought leaders.

Exhibiting is a great way to reach a new network of people and be a part of a new conversation happening in the region. Exhibits will be located on the 5th floor of the RI Convention Center in common areas just outside workshop sessions.
